Time travel

Last year Wendy and I went to a castle in Wales. It was like a trip back in time. There were pictures of knights on the walls and armour¹ in the rooms. “I would really like to travel back in time, Charles. It would be great to live in King Arthur’s time,” Wendy said. Then, while we were walking down a hall, we noticed something. A man was moving away from us, and then, suddenly, he wasn’t there. I mean, we couldn’t see him anywhere. We went down the hall, but we couldn’t find him – or anything. No door or window, nothing. We looked at each other with big eyes. Then Wendy put her left hand against the wall, and that’s when it happened. The wall suddenly seemed to move and we fell down – and down. Then we were lying on the floor but we were all right. We looked around and saw a lot of knights in armour. Two of them with blood all over themselves were fighting. It was crazy and frightening. “Hey, it has really happened!” Wendy said. “We have travelled back in time. We’ve fallen into the past through a time hole.” Wow! We were in another time. But then, while we were standing there, someone suddenly shouted, “Cut!” Then people in normal clothes came into the room. “These idiots have fallen through our false wall,” one of them said while they were pushing us out of the way. “We’ll have to shoot² the scene again.” “They’re making a film about King Arthur,” Wendy said. Sometimes she’s very quick. “Let’s ask them if we can be in it, too.” She also has a lot of good ideas. When we asked, they said “No!” They just didn’t understand how good we are.
